This article was developed as a new method for extraction of protein from tissue samples with complete sterilization of the sample. Using this procedure, abnormal prion protein patterns were seen suggesting the method could be used to diagnose cases of CJD.